A Message From Our President

Aloha, and Happy Thanksgiving!

We had a houseful of family and friends, and I am enjoying the leftover turkey sandwiches - which are sometimes the best part.

We are approaching our Annual Christmas Party - a lunch this year. So remember, there is no general meeting in the month of December. Don't show up at the school....none of us will be there!!!

Instead, I hope to see you all at the Christmas Lunch. We will have a ton of plants for the raffle and some other interesting activities for all who are attending. More info is inside the newsletter.

My orchid plants seem to be surviving pretty well this rainy season. Over the next few weekends, I hope to be able to get to some of them and continue my goal of repotting the entire greenhouse.

I hope you and your family all have a wonderful holiday season. If you are not attending the Christmas Party, I look forward to seeing you all in 2019 - Wednesday, January 2nd, the first General Meeting of the New Year! Happy Holidays!

~Sheron

Orchid Tip of the Month by Scot Mitamura

December brings us into our Hawaiian winter. The days are at their shortest at this time and combined with the almost constant rainfall, we must try to keep our orchids dry. Provide the proper media that will dry quickly and have lots of airspace for the roots. Keep them in smaller pots, so the media dries faster. Also, provide adequate air circulation and avoid over crowding your orchids. Clay or cement pots will dry faster than plastic. Hanging your pots or mounting your orchids on wood or in baskets is the best way to avoid over-watering your orchids.

From now until February, we want to keep our Hono Hono dry and stop fertilizing them to promote leaf drop and dormancy. Buds should begin to emerge in February, and once you know that they have flower buds, you can begin watering and fertilizing them again.

I will use this column to address many of the common questions I receive during the "Orchid Doctor" sessions. A common one is: "How do I avoid having ants, cockroaches, centipedes, or other unwanted critters in my orchid pots?" A quick solution would be to spray them with the Bayer 3 n 1. This should take care of most things. But the main cause of this problem is that your orchid needs repotting. In a couple of years after potting, your media will break down. When this happens, roots will begin to die, the bark will become mushy or powdery, and often air pockets will form. This provides the proper environment for the nesting of these critters. As a reminder, note repotting dates on the back of your orchid label.

If you didn't get enough orchids at the auction night, you have another great opportunity to increase your collection by coming to the Christmas Luncheon. We will be raffling for only a dollar a ticket, a crazy amount of orchids from the best nurseries in the state. If you can't make it, you can always pay someone to purchase tickets for you! ~ Scot
